M'bora dividir

Producers: The Mediapro Studio

With 5 seasons broadcast in Angola, to win the money in this competition, you just have to be out in the street! Our host randomly chooses different people she comes across. If they agree to participate in the competition, they just have to answer 5 true or false questions. These questions are asked by a famous celebrity over a tablet that the host is carrying with her.

For each correct answer, contestants double the amount of money they win. They can walk away after each correct answer, but if they keep playing and get the next question wrong, they leave empty-handed. And if they don't know the answer, they can ask another passerby for help. But if they do, they'll now be playing together and will have to split whatever they win.

“M'BORA DIVIDIR” is a fun way to tour a country or a region, providing entertainment for the whole family with simple mechanics, the allure of a different celebrity in each round and questions that are easy for everyone to understand.
