
Drama, Thriller · 2017 · 1 Season / 10x70' · Spain

Lifeline

David Ulloa, Emilio Aragón, David Victori

Producers: Globomedia (The Mediapro Studio), Atresmedia

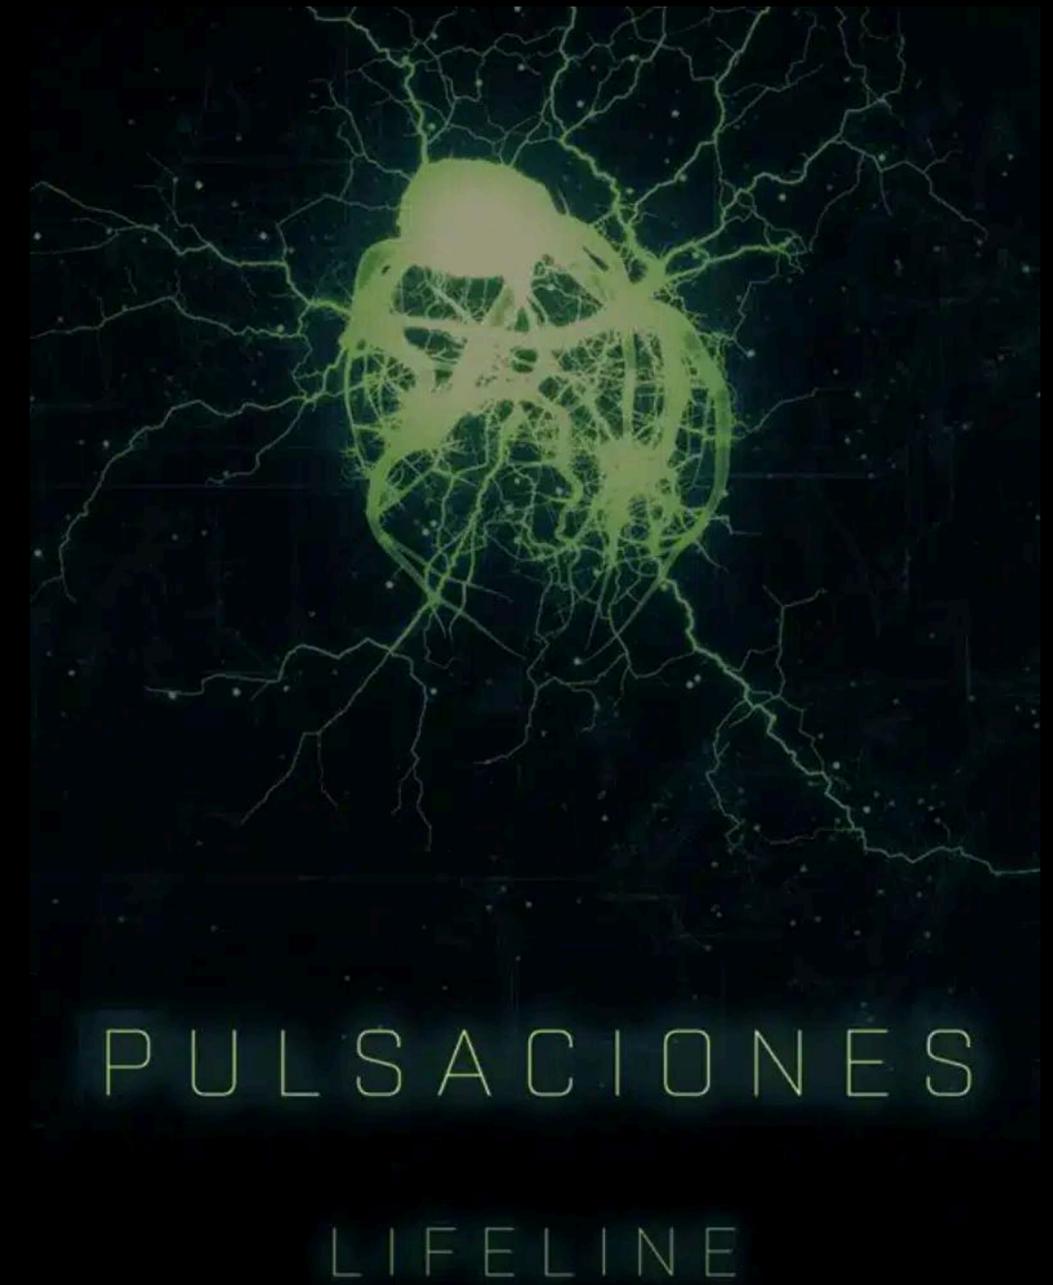

Script: Emilio Aragón, Francisco Roncal, Carmen Ortiz, Ángela Obón, Adriana Rivas, Ramón Tarrés, Juan María Ruiz Córdoba

Cast: Juan Diego Botto, Ingrid Rubio, David Ulloa, Leonor Watling, Pablo Derqui, Meritxell Calvo

Lifeline is a series revolving around an important question of our times: Is there such a thing as "heart memory"? This medical thriller explores this possibility, which has been much discussed and of which there is scientific proof. A controversial issue, no doubt, which will spark debate among members of the audience. Lifeline is the investigation a man carries out in order to solve the mysterious death of his heart donor. In pursuing the investigation in search of the culprits, he puts his own life at risk, as well as that of his loved ones. The only clues on which his investigation relies are the memories the heart sends to his new owner in the form of dreams. A drama with an original and intense love story revolving around a triangle whose center is our leading character, caught between his wife and the widow of his heart donor. As the saying goes, "the heart has reasons that reason cannot understand". One cannot choose the person one loves. Rather, it is a choice made by the heart and there isn't much the brain can do about it.

Who would you love if you had someone else's heart and memories?

Series

Trailer