
Horror · 2007 · 90' · Canada

Swarm

Direction: George Mendeluk

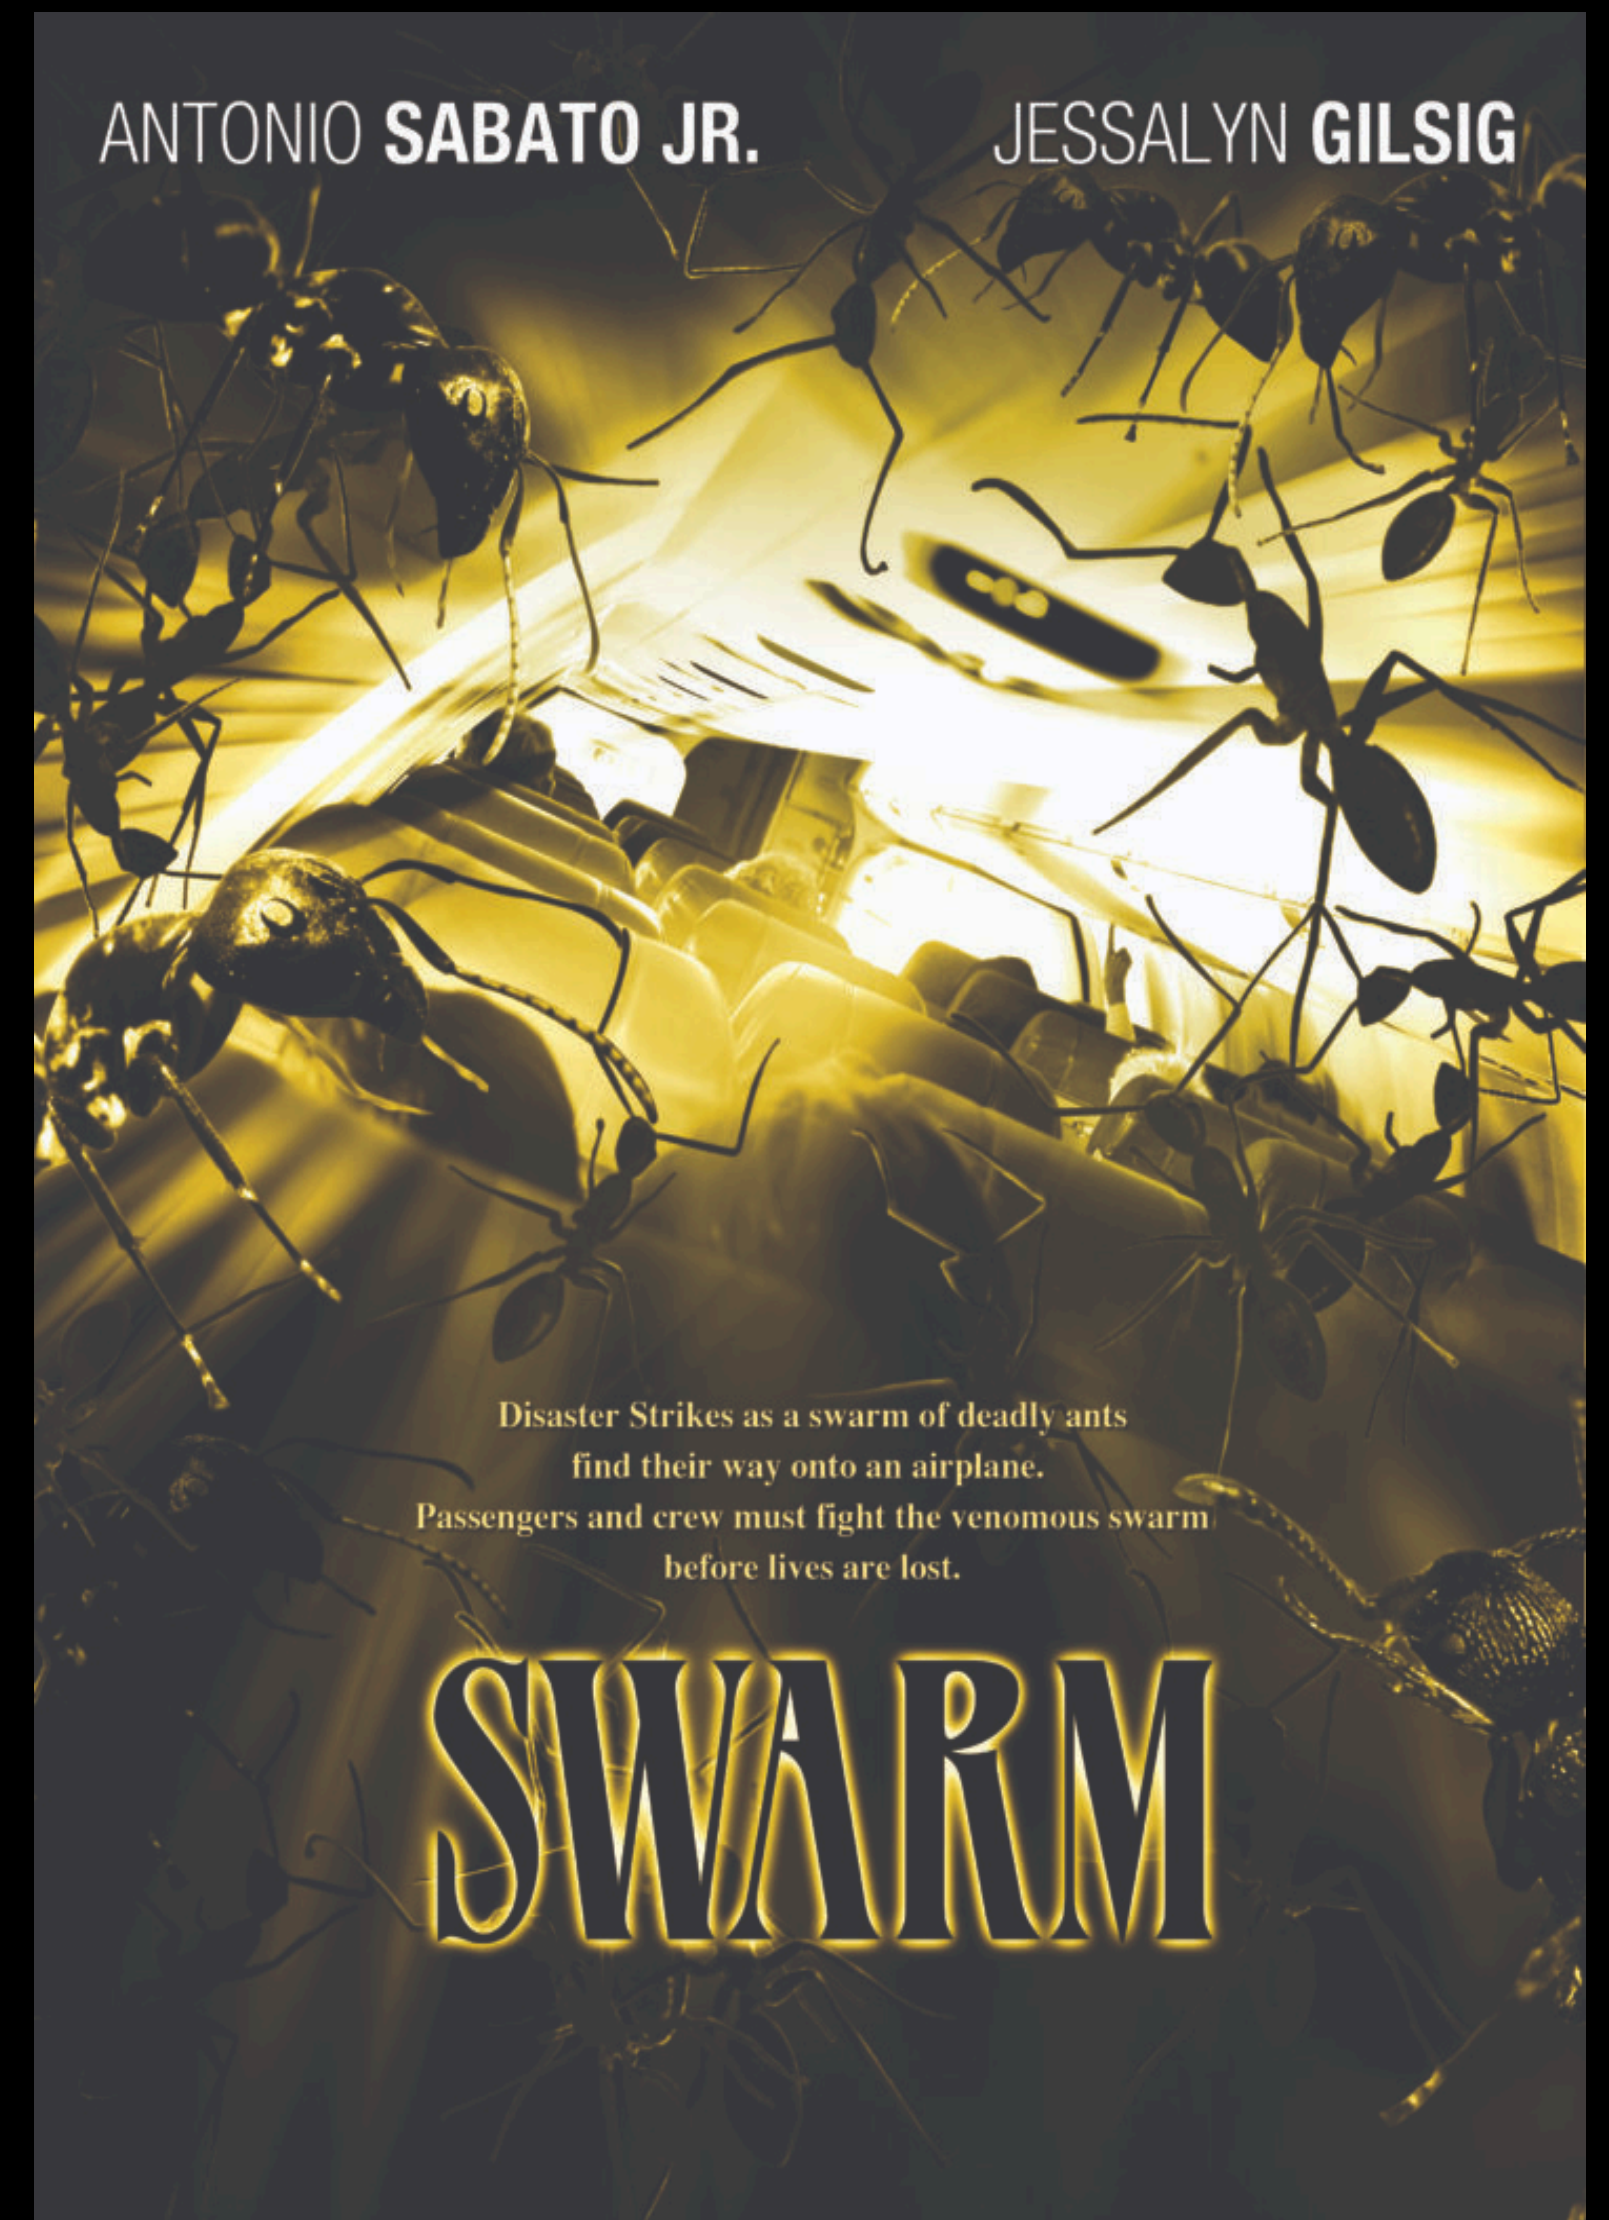

Script: Mary Weinstein

Cast: Jessalyn Gilsig, Antonio Sabato Jr., Serge Houde, Ryan McDonell, Emily Tennant, Karen Holness, Mackenzie Gray, Michele Lonsdale Smith, Matt Bellefleur, Daniel Bacon

Producers: Johnson Production Group

A routine flight departs from Barranquilla, Colombia to Atlanta, Georgia. Suddenly one passenger collapses dead with ants crawling out of a hole in his chest. CDC entomologist Dr Carrie Ross is aboard with her teenager daughter and realises that these are a mutated form of black bullet ants, the most poisonous species in the world. The plane is refused permission for an emergency landing and told that it may not enter US airspace lest the ants be loosed on American soil. As the word gets around, every nearby country refuses landing too. Meanwhile, the ants have burrowed into the wiring of the plane and start causing power to short out. It is up to Carrie and air marshal Ethan Hart to venture into the plane's bowels to drive back the ants and rewire the circuitry for an emergency landing at a disused Air Force base.

Movies

Trailer

THE MEDIAPRO
STUDIO
DISTRIBUTION